cheap mlb jerseys,wholesale jerseys PHOENIX — The famous woman stood behind her man, urging him to throw strikes. No, the supermodel Gisele Bundchen did not show up in Tempe, Ariz., Friday to watch her boyfriend, Patriots quarterback Tom Brady, practice.

Hamm, whose silhouette will serve as the logo for a new women's professional soccer league, and Garciaparra arrived in Arizona on Thursday night and plan to stay through Super Bowl XLII on Sunday. It is a rare weekend retreat for the couple,cheap mlb jerseys,wholesale jerseys who have had little time to themselves since becoming parents to twin girls, Ava and Grace, last March.

The former soccer superstar Mia Hamm was in downtown Phoenix watching her husband, Dodgers infielder Nomar Garciaparra, bowl for charity in a pre-Super Bowl event staged by Gatorade to introduce a new low-calorie drink, G2.

"It nice to be able to sit down and say, 'How was your day? How are you?' and kind of be adults," Hamm said.

"We were talking about it, and I said 'Maybe I'll just stay back and you go,'" she said. "And before I could finish the sentence, he said, 'No.' He doesn't want to miss out on all the developmental stuff that's happening right now."cheap mlb jerseys,wholesale jerseys,custom made jerseys,nfl tshirts,discount jerseys

Garciaparra and Hamm may be a power couple, but they said they could not relate to the paparazzi attention heaped on Brady and Bundchen. If that was them, Hamm said, "and I was at the grocery store or something, I'd ask the photographers to grab a cart or grab a baby."

Garciaparra and Hamm plan to attend Sunday's game, although they admit their allegiances are divided. Garciaparra played for the Red Sox for nearly nine seasons and says he feels a brotherhood with the Patriots. On the other hand, Garciaparra and Hamm have gotten to know the Manning family well as a result of their various endorsement deals, including with Gatorade, and are big fans of Giants quarterback Eli Manning.

"Maybe I'll wear a Washington Redskins jersey," quipped Hamm,cheap mlb jerseys,wholesale jerseys,custom made jerseys,nfl tshirts,discount jerseys referring to the team she rooted for as a child.

Phoenix is pulsing with people and parties, but Hamm and Garciaparra were looking forward to getting a few good nights' sleep. In less than three weeks, Garciaparra will leave for spring training in Florida. Hamm figured she would stay behind in Los Angeles with the twins.

On third down and fourth down late in the fourth quarter Sunday night, cheap nhl jerseys Giants fans were no doubt thankful that Donovan McNabb didn't a) cheap jerseys from china,wholesale jerseys

cheap mlb jerseys

Eagles fans watching at home were nodding in approval with John Madden late Sunday night. That's not exactly a recipe for happy Birds fans.cheap jerseys from china,wholesale jerseys

It was after the Eagles failed to convert on 3rd then 4th and short with minutes to play on two straight run calls that Madden had to remind us of Andy Reid's similar decision to run during a key situation in Chicago against the Bears. The Birds couldn't get a single yard then on four tries so why did he think they could get against the Giants on two tries? The Giant defense dominated the line of scrimmage,cheap jerseys from china,wholesale jerseys preventing the Eagles from getting a first down and in the process ended any hope of a comeback win against the defending champs.

Instead, Brian Westbrook was stuffed on two runs, effectively ending the game. So how did the strategy play in Philadelphia? Enrico Campitelli Jr. of the 700Level.com, a brotherly sports blog from Philly, who was kind enough to help the Fifth Down as a guest blogger last winter, sent us this dispatch:

The Eagles are not a running team and were especially inept on Sunday night against the Giants at trying to do anything productive on the ground. That's why the decision to run in that situation was so terribly frustrating to fans. cheap jerseys from china,wholesale jerseys,cheap jerseys from china free shipping,cheap chinese jerseys,practice jerseys

The Eagles, despite getting the short end of the stick from the referees on a few calls and generally executing poorly throughout, found themselves in a winnable game with minutes to play. Again, not a situation Eagles fans feel very comfortable in. This Eagles team seems just good enough to hang around but not good enough to close things out against good teams.

On Monday, reporters asked Reid if he was worried about the team's current situation. "I know what I have as far as coaches and players, and I know what we have to do and we are going to do it," he said.cheap jerseys from china,wholesale jerseys,cheap jerseys from china free shipping,cheap chinese jerseys,practice jerseys

If the Eagles' offensive line is dropping back into protection over and over and over, can you really expect them to all of a sudden bull over the imposing Giants defensive line?

Extra point: On the 700 Level blog post on the game,cheap mlb jerseys several readers suggested that they would gladly trade Reid to the Giants to get Steve Spagnuolo back. Should Reid, who is a top coach in so many other respects, designate someone on his staff to make in-game decisions for him?

The two longest-tenured coaches in the N.F.L. met on Sunday in Philadelphia.cheap nhl jerseys After the game, fans and columnists questioned whether Andy Reid, No. 1 on the list, should keep his job. Of course, it was Philadelphia, cheap nhl jerseys so that's never not going to be a question.cheap nfl jerseys wholesale,wholesale jerseys

Here's the view from Philadelphia,cheap mlb jerseys with a few words from DeSean Jackson:

John Smallwood,cheap nfl jerseys wholesale,wholesale jerseysThe Daily News, said Eagles fans sent a message to ownership "more powerful than any 'Andy Must Go!' chant."cheap nfl jerseys wholesale,wholesale jerseys,jerseys for cheap,nfl replica jerseys cheap,where to buy nfl jerseys

The Eagles, a week after beating the Giants, resumed their status as one of the league's biggest disappointments. The loss to Bill Belichick and the Patriots all but signaled the end of their playoff hopes.

Eagles fans got out of their high-priced seats and left. In the 17 years that I've been in Philadelphia, I've seen Eagles fans leave a game early when the cause seemed to be lost, but I don't ever recall them starting a mass exodus with more than 6 minutes left in the third quarter.

Phil Sheridan, The Inquirer:

It was not the worst loss of Andy Reid's tenure or even the Eagles' miserable season. It was merely the most revealing.

How about 8-8? If the team stumbles along to finish 6-10, does that change the thinking?

The other Eagle under fire is receiver DeSean Jackson,cheap nfl jerseys wholesale,wholesale jerseys a tormenter of the Giants but who was benched in the fourth quarter and who doesn't seem long for Philadelphia.

Sheridan, who said the Eagles are on an unmistakeable downward trend under Reid, wondered what it would take for Eagles ownership to dismiss him:

Amid a contract dispute, Jackson said concern about his health was a factor in his style of play.cheap nfl jerseys wholesale,wholesale jerseys,jerseys for cheap,nfl replica jerseys cheap,where to buy nfl jerseys

"Always. Always got to keep your head on a swivel," he said.

Was he worried about his health on that play?

Jackson — the once dynamic wide receiver who showed flashes of becoming one of the franchise's greatest at that position — has turned into perhaps the most unreliable target on offense. He dropped a handful of passes and shied away from contact against the Patriots. His worst offense came when he short-armed a sure-thing touchdown catch because he heard footsteps.

"What'd you think?" he said as he walked away from reporters.

Extra point Since starting with a 5-11 record in 1999, Reid has had only one losing season, a remarkable record of success — but no Super Bowl title, as is always brought up. If the Eagles miss the playoffs, should his critics get their wish?

Under the headline "Andy Bashers Take a Holiday," Rich Hoffman of The Philadelphia Daily News chided Eagles fans, or, cheap mlb jerseys as he called some of them,cheap nhl jerseys the Balance Police. Excerpt:cheap jerseys wholesale,wholesale jerseys

They weren't getting anything out of it (but for one 27-yard run by Correll Buckhalter).cheap jerseys wholesale,wholesale jerseys The rest of the time, Brian Westbrook was banging his head against a wall and he didn't look like he had the burst it would take to bounce outside. So Reid and offensive coordinator Marty Mornhinweg did what they almost always do in that situation — they threw.

At the point where Westbrook caught the 71-yard screen pass for a touchdown, the Eagles has called about 68 percent passes and 32 percent runs. When they are losing, these are the kinds of numbers that get Reid barbecued. It is only a few play calls away from the sainted concept of balance, but people here insist that those play calls are the holy grail. Well, he wasn't balanced yesterday. So why aren't the Balance Police out in force?

Because it was never about the play-calling, except in the most extreme cases. It is about the players.

The Andy-bashers are giving the coach grudging credit for sticking with the run game against the Vikings even though it wasn't working. This is wrong. He didn't stick with it.cheap jerseys wholesale,wholesale jerseys,sports jerseys china,majestic jerseys,custom nfl jerseys cheap

A reader in the comments section countered:cheap jerseys wholesale,wholesale jerseys,sports jerseys china,majestic jerseys,custom nfl jerseys cheap

Rich, I admire your work and have always respected your opinions. However, it is clear that you don't get it when it comes to the playcalling gripe fans have with Andy. Your logic has always been to blame the players — essentially saying that the coaches are incapable of putting the players in a bad position.

Extra point: In his news conference, Reid was asked,cheap jerseys wholesale,wholesale jerseys,sports jerseys china,majestic jerseys,custom nfl jerseys cheap as he frequently is, about the run-pass balance: "We tried to keep it as balanced as we could so I didn't have to answer that question. I can't believe you asked that question, but I am kind of glad you did."

The unbalanced approach puts the players in a bad position. Running the ball provides balance, and to be honest, Andy's philosophy yesterday was an improvement. Considering what Minny's numbers were against the run (#1 in the league), what Reid did was appropriate. It's when he's facing teams that aren't as good against the run as they are against the pass — when he's incessantly calling passes that fly in the face of logic — that drive fans nuts.

What would happen if the Detroit Lions passed on their pick?

If they just sat there slackjawed as the clock ran out. nfl retro jerseys,nfl jerseys cheap,nfl authentic jerseys,discount football jerseys,wholesale jerseys from china

Ross Tucker, SI.com:

The money paid to the top five rookies has gotten so steep that this approach could be a legitimate option for a team.

If you're curious how this would work,**nfl retro jerseys,nfl jerseys cheap,nfl authentic jerseys,discount football jerseys,wholesale jerseys from china** Mike Florio of ProFootballTalk.com explains the logistics:

Basically, a team that passes still holds the right to submit its pick at any time, constrained only by the ability of other teams to beat them to the punch.

It's a serious suggestion. Given the financial commitment inherent in making the No. 1 pick and the lack of a clear-cut best player, the Lions should consider letting the clock strike zero and let the Rams make the first selection. Maybe even let the Chiefs slide in there too, before making a pick at three or four.

A note of reality: This isn't likely to happen in this draft. The Lions will probably use their leverage, playing the top prospects off one another in the next two weeks, to reach a deal they can live with.

But unless the league and union fix a system that saddles teams at the top of the draft with huge rookie contracts, a strange game of abstain could happen someday.

2) Ernie Palladino of The Journal News wrote a neat item on Tom Coughlin's recent pilgrimage to John Wooden's home. Coughlin worships Wooden.

And if it did — and if other teams started passing because they felt it wasn't worth it — it would be the wildest and most amusing draft day ever. (Mel Kiper Jr.'s hair might spontaneously combust.)

Coughlin had never met the man until his wife urged him to try for an appointment.

"She said, 'You've got to go see him, sit with him, talk to him, because if you don't you'll regret it for the rest of your life,'" Coughlin said.

Coughlin found a man whose body is failing, but whose mind is still as sharp as the master tactician of the '60s.

In August, ESPN announced a new way to measure quarterbacks: nfl jerseys,football jerseys for kids,wholesale cheap jerseys,wholesale jerseys usa,soccer jerseys cheap Total QBR. As you would expect, many writers weighed in with their thoughts. Few football fans have faith in the traditional passer rating system; even fewer understand how it works.

Statistics for rushing,nfl jerseys,football jerseys for kids,wholesale cheap jerseys,wholesale jerseys usa,soccer jerseys cheapsacks and fumbles for quarterbacks are included. Positive plays are rewarded partly as a reflection of game situation. A 10-yard completion on third-and-20 is much less valuable than a conversion on third-and-9, and ESPN's Total QBR measures this. Quarterbacks are generally given credit for only what they control and not given blame for what they can't. A screen pass that goes for 70 yards won't help a quarterback much, but an interception that bounces off the hands of his intended receiver has only minimal impact. A great pass that results in pass interference is a positive play for the quarterback. Total QBR rewards such plays. A clutch factor is included in the rating, which assigns more weight to plays that occur when the stakes are particularly high.

As with any new statistic, there was backlash. Some did not like the inclusion of subjective factors (will a wide receiver be blamed more for an incompletion if Aaron Rodgers is throwing rather than, say, Joe Flacco?). Others thought the emphasis on clutch plays was misguided.

That's one of the reasons ESPN spent several years charting every N.F.L. play and seven months devising a system that would not only represent a step forward from the traditional passer rating but would also be easier for fans to understand. Total QBR grades quarterbacks in some innovative ways: nfl jerseys,football jerseys for kids,wholesale cheap jerseys,wholesale jerseys usa,soccer jerseys cheap

As long as you understand a statistic, you can find ways to use it. Assigning extra weight to clutch plays, along with other aspects of the win probability model used by ESPN, tends to make Total QBR more of an explanatory (or retrodictive) statistic than a predictive one.

I generally use two statistics to grade quarterbacks: Adjusted Net Yards per Attempt and Net Yards per Attempt. ANY/A includes passing yards, sack yards lost, interceptions (each worth -45 yards) and passing touchdowns (worth 20 yards each) in the numerator, with sacks and pass attempts in the denominator. ANY/A is a very good explanatory stat, but for predictive purposes, I use net yards per attempt. NY/A is simply the result of passing yards minus sack yards, with that total divided by the sum of attempts plus sacks. By removing interceptions and touchdowns — plays that certainly play a huge role in explaining who wins a game but are more random than yards per attempt — NY/A is a better predictive stat than ANY/A.nfl jerseys,football jerseys for kids,wholesale cheap jerseys,wholesale jerseys usa,soccer jerseys cheap

For example, teams with a higher Total QBR rating in games this season are 137-22, for a winning percentage of 86.2 percent. That's fantastic for any explanatory statistic, but that doesn't necessarily make it optimally designed to tell us who is going to win games this weekend.

Passer rating is also an explanatory statistic,nfl jerseys,football jerseys for kids,wholesale cheap jerseys,wholesale jerseys usa,soccer jerseys cheap with a very large negative weight on interceptions and a large bonus given for completions. One of the main reasons passer rating has stuck around so long is that it tends to work very well as an explanatory statistic (this season, the team with the higher passer rating has won 76.7 percent of games).

Because ESPN's Total QBR, the traditional passer rating and ANY/A all have different formulas, comparing the three can highlight which players are doing particularly well under which system — and more important, why. Let's take a look.

That makes sense, but only because teams that are winning are conservative and throw short passes that are easy to complete (artificially inflating passer ratings), and trailing teams throw riskier passes, which results in more incompletions and interceptions.

Low rating in ESPN Total QBR: Alex Smith, Mark Sanchez, Tim Tebow

Alex Smith ranks 9th in ANY/A. Thanks to a fantastic interception rate, he's 7th in traditional passer rating. San Francisco is 9-1 and clearly the second-best team in football. So why is Smith only 19th in Total QBR?

Traditional passer rating ignores sacks, and sack rate is the only statistic in which Smith is below league average this season. ANY/A includes sacks in the formula, so that's not the explanation for the divergence there. Jeff Bennett, a senior member of ESPN's analytics team, explained to me that, generally speaking, Total QBR will not align with traditional statistics when a quarterback performs particularly well or poorly (1) when the score is close (especially late in the game), (2) when he is in the red zone, (3) on third or fourth down, or (4) at avoiding negative plays (fumbles, sacks, interceptions, penalties).nfl jerseys,football jerseys for kids,wholesale cheap jerseys,wholesale jerseys usa,soccer jerseys cheap

O.K., but what about Smith specifically? Why is he a league-average quarterback according to the folks at ESPN? According to Bennett, Total QBR estimates that his sacks have cost the 49ers 18 points this season, the sixth most among the 35 qualified quarterbacks. He is also one of only six such quarterbacks to cost his team points via penalties (i.e., more delay-of-game types of penalties than defensive pass interference ones).

Bennett added, "We start with how the team is doing on these types of breakdowns and then divide credit/blame to the quarterback and his teammates based on analysis we performed before the season on the different play types and details provided by the video-tracked stats."

There's another, simpler answer. Smith has been average on most plays. He is 16th in percentage of passes that go for first downs. He's league-average in third down and red zone performance. A low interception rate is nice, but Total QBR has not been nearly as impressed with Smith as it has been by the 49ers' rush offense, rush defense and special teams.

Sanchez has 10 interceptions, but his seven fumbles are ignored by ANY/A and passer rating. Sanchez ranks 19th in both passer rating and ANY/A, but ranks a woeful 29th in ESPN Total QBR. Five of his ten interceptions have come inside an opponent's 30-yard line and in close games, making them particularly damaging. Sanchez has been responsible for five touchdowns scored by the defense via interceptions or fumbles, which would not be picked up by ANY/A or traditional passer rating.

Tim Tebow. Bennett added, "His clutch-weighted EPA [expected points added] lost on interceptions, sacks and fumbles is the 2nd-worst of any quarterback," behind only Philip Rivers.nfl jerseys,football jerseys for kids,wholesale cheap jerseys,wholesale jerseys usa,soccer jerseys cheap

Tebow's place here is a real stunner. As polarizing as he is, most fans agree that Tebow has been great at two things: rushing and providing clutch moments late in games. That would seem to make him the exemplar for using Total QBR as opposed to passer rating or ANY/A. But Tebow ranks 23rd and 25th in the latter two categories and just 30th overall in Total QBR. Here's what Bennett had to say:

He also had a large number of action plays in that loss. In his best games measured by Total QBR he has had relatively fewer action plays so he hasn't been able to overcome that one truly dreadful game yet."

"His Total QBR in the Week 8 Lions debacle was 3.4 (56.8 traditional passer rating helped by his meaningless TD when trailing 45-3).

Jeff also noted that Tebow's Total QBR is 77.7 on all rushing plays but a miserable 12.1 on all passing plays (which includes sacks). His Total QBR by quarter is 47.0, 6.7, 10.7 and then 86.4 in the fourth quarter. So as we all suspect, Tebow's helped in Total QBR by his rushing ability and his performances late in close games.

Highly rated by Total QBR: Matt Hasselbeck, Matt Ryan, Michael Vick

Matt Hasselbeck. So why is he still lower in Total QBR? Because Total QBR includes sacks and fumbles, and in two of Tebow's five games he had a combined 13 sacks and four fumbles. Tebow's fourth-quarter Total QBR is the second best in the league behind Eli Manning. But it's not enough to counteract his ugly passing and turnovers in games against Detroit and Miami.

Matt Hasselbeck is wildly exceeding expectations in his first season in Tennessee. His last three seasons in Seattle were grim, but Hasselbeck is ranked 10th in passer rating and 12th in ANY/A in 2011. Even more surprising? Total QBR is particularly impressed, with a ranking of No. 5.nfl jerseys,football jerseys for kids,wholesale cheap jerseys,wholesale jerseys usa,soccer jerseys cheap

Hasselbeck has been superb in the red zone, underscoring that Total QBR is best interpreted as an explanatory (and not a predictive) stat. Red zone performances are crucial in games but are largely inconsistent from week to week and year to year.

Hasselbeck has also played really well in close games, which passer rating and ANY/A don't recognize. He has 170 pass attempts when the game is within 8 points and 167 attempts when the spread is larger than 8. In the close games, he has gained 1,417 passing yards, thrown 9 touchdowns and had 4 interceptions; in the remainder, he has only 940 passing yards, five touchdowns and four interceptions.

Matt Ryan. But this season, Hasselbeck has 11 touchdowns, no interceptions, a 71 percent completion rate, and has taken only two sacks in 48 red zone plays. He has posted a phenomenal 98.8 Total QBR in those situations.

Matt Ryan has performed very well in Total QBR each season, so perhaps it isn't surprising to see him ranked 8th in that category in 2011. In passer rating and ANY/A, however, Ryan is ranked 13th. His yards per completion average has jumped from 10.3 last year to 12.0 this season, which helps explain why he's arguably playing better in 2011 despite a lower completion percentage and quarterback rating.

Ryan's interception rate is a little high, which hurts most in traditional passer rating. And neither ANY/A nor passer rating will give Ryan credit for his two rushing touchdowns and seven additional rushing first downs. Ryan also leads the league in points added via penalty. In Week 6 against the Panthers, Ryan threw a pass to Roddy White that could have gone for a touchdown; instead a 37-yard pass interference penalty placed Atlanta on the one-yard line.

You would expect Vick to do well in Total QBR, so no surprises here. Vick ranks 11th in that category, 16th in ANY/A and 20th in traditional passer rating. Passer rating ignores Vick's significant contributions on the ground, and puts an enormous weight on Vick's ugly interception rate in 2011. According to Footballguys.com, Vick has converted a first down on 36 percent of all plays this season, which ranks among the top 10 among quarterbacks. Those sorts of plays improve a team's win probability and a player's Total QBR, but are not recognized in other statistical measures of quarterback proficiency. Vick is more of a big-play threat than most quarterbacks — both with his arm and his legs — which will mean traditional passer rating will always undervalue him. nfl jerseys,football jerseys for kids,wholesale cheap jerseys,wholesale jerseys usa,soccer jerseys cheap

Later in the first half, another Panthers pass interference penalty drawn by White brought the Falcons to the one-yard line. Ryan's numbers that day were unimpressive — 14 of 22 for 163 yards, 1 touchdown (1 rushing touchdown) — but factoring in the penalties along with his clutch plays, Total QBR had Ryan as the top quarterback of Week 6.

Some quarterbacks line up around the same ranking in Total QBR and either passer rating or ANY/A, but not in the third category. Let's take a look:

Low rating in traditional passer rating: Christian Ponder

Christian Ponder has a terrible 52.1 completion rate, the equivalent of poison in the traditional passer rating formula. But Ponder ranks in the top 10 in the league in yards per completion, which helps to explain why his completion percentage is low: he's throwing more passes downfield than a lot of quarterbacks.

Highly rated by traditional passer rating: Aaron Rodgers

ANY/A captures this, which is why Ponder's 34th in passer rating but 29th in ANY/A. Ponder is 24th in Total QBR, thanks in part to his aggressive passing and his better than average rushing ability.

O.K., this one is a little tricky. Rodgers ranks No. 1 in nearly every statistic out there for quarterbacks, including ESPN's Total QBR, ANY/A and passer rating. But the difference between Rodgers and the No. 5 QB in passer rating is larger than the difference between the No. 5 QB and the No. 34 QB in that category. With ESPN's Total QBR, the differences are less pronounced. Rodgers is 16 points better than the No. 5 QB in Total QBR, while the No. 5 QB is 45 points better than the No. 34 QB. To put it another way, Rodgers is 3.6 standard deviations above average in passer rating but "only" 2.2 standard deviations above average in Total QBR (in ANY/A, he's much closer to passer rating than Total QBR). Rodgers is igniting everything in his path this season, but Total QBR caps — relative to passer rating or ANY/A — the ability for Rodgers to show just how dominant he has been. nfl jerseys,football jerseys for kids,wholesale cheap jerseys,wholesale jerseys usa,soccer jerseys cheap

For Brees, it's easy to understand the discrepancies here. Passer rating always loves Brees because of his completion percentage; he led the league in completion percentage in 2009 and 2010, and is second behind Rodgers this season despite having the highest ratio of his career. But in regular yards per attempt, he's 7th, which is why he's only 6th in ANY/A. Brees is second in passer rating but 4th in Total QBR thanks to his hyper accuracy (he probably receives a higher percentage of credit for his throws compared with the average quarterback) and his ability to avoid sacks. Brees is an incredibly valuable player, and ANY/A slightly undervalues him.

Outside of the top and bottom five, the remaining quarterbacks in Total QBR range over a 34 point spectrum, from 35 to 69. Meanwhile, traditional passer rating operates in a tighter window, with most quarterbacks ranging between 72 and 95. Rodgers blows those quarterbacks out of the water with a 129 passer rating, but ESPN makes all of his performances incrementally less valuable once you reach the upper echelon of the spectrum.

Manning was one of the players whose value looked much better under the Total QBR microscope than any other; that's largely because his receivers have often dropped passes (often leading to interceptions) or otherwise failed him. So it's a little surprising to see him ranked "only" 9th in Total QBR while ranking 6th in passer rating and 5th in ANY/A.

Chase Stuart is a contributor to SmartFootball.com, Footballguys.com and nflfanjerseys.com.

Some of it has to do with a bunch of fluky long scores by the Giants this season, but a lot of it is just random variation. Manning ranked 7th in Total QBR before the Eagles game, but that poor performance dropped him to ninth. Manning ranks second in the league in yards per completion, which will make him look better in ANY/A than passer rating.

A decisive late-game interception almost seemed like a Brett Favre cliche, but the second half of Vikings-Jets and the off-the-field happenings did not lack spice. Let's go to the links:nfl eagles jerseys,new orleans saints jerseys,football jerseys for cheap,wholesalejerseys,wholesale jerseys

Michael David Smith, ProFootballTalk.com:

"Brett Favre actually broke down in tears and was very emotional,nfl eagles jerseys,new orleans saints jerseys,football jerseys for cheap,wholesalejerseys,wholesale jerseysssaying, 'I'm sorry to have been a distraction,'" Tafoya said she was told by Longwell.

Vikings kicker Ryan Longwell, a longtime friend and teammate of Brett Favre's, says that Favre cried as he told teammates he was sorry for the distraction caused by allegations that he sexually harassed former Jets employee Jenn Sterger. ESPN's Michelle Tafoya said on SportsCenter that she talked to Longwell about the meeting.

Rich Cimini, ESPN New York, on the interception:

In his postgame news conference (video here at the Vikings' Web site), Favre seemed almost fragile. He wasn't pleased that the contents of his talk with his teammates had been leaked. "That's between me and my teammates," he told reporters when he was asked for details, then he paused and added, "Apparently, not all of them."

On the New York Jets' sideline, the confidence never wavered. When it looked like Favre was going to steal the night, they counted on two things: Their own resilience and Favre's penchant for the killer interception.

Greg Bishop of The Times on the scene before and after the game:

Both proved true, as the Jets won their fourth straight, hanging on for a 29-20 victory over the Minnesota Vikings at a rain-soaked New Meadowlands Stadium. "We said, 'Let's just keep playing, he'll throw us one,'" defensive end Shaun Ellis said later in the dry and jubilant locker room. "We were just waiting for him to show up."

Afterward, Favre stood behind a curtain,nfl eagles jerseys,new orleans saints jerseys,football jerseys for cheap,wholesalejerseys,wholesale jerseys before entering an interview room jammed with reporters. He seemed stoic. Asked directly if the allegations against him were true, Favre answered, "If you want to talk about what happened in the football game, I'd love to."

Fans booed heartily as he jogged onto the field. They held signs alluding to recent Deadspin reports – of Favre sending lewd pictures to a female sideline personality while under the Jets' employ – that spoke not to the birthday boy, but of his birthday suit.

Judd Zulgad, The Star Tribune, on the consternation of Vikings Coach Brad Childress:

Favre parried away all questions about whether he was distracted in the first half. He said that he was as "prepared" and "focused" as he had ever been, and that he had given his all.

Darren Rovell, CNBC, on the business angle:nfl eagles jerseys,new orleans saints jerseys,football jerseys for cheap,wholesalejerseys,wholesale jerseys

How on earth could a team coming off a bye — the Vikings had a 17-4 record returning from the off week entering Monday — not be prepared? "Your guess is as good as mine," Childress said. "Whatever guess you want to venture."

I spoke to a couple people yesterday who were surprised that Brett Favre's Wrangler jeans spots were still running. Surprised that he was still on their Web site. They were surprised that Wrangler had no comment. Well, I'm not. Put yourself in their shoes, or jeans.

On one of the most hyped Monday nights in recent memory, the Minnesota Vikings had nothing.

Michael Silver, Yahoo Sports, on the bright side for Favre and Minnesota: (Favre had three touchdown passes in the second half.)

And then, with 2:10 remaining in the third quarter, Favre dropped back, delivered a pass more perfect than a Hawaii sunset and changed everything – everything – about a game, a team and a still flickering dream.

A few other outtakes from Favre's news conference:

On his touchdown throw to Randy Moss: "I have to admit, I've been thinking about that for 8 to 10 years."

Even if those 17 minutes of magic were the last we'll ever get from Favre, I'll be grateful, for they were that good. But I really, really get the feeling that he's pretty far from done.

On his elbow tendonitis: "It's the worst it's felt. I missed some throws on the last few drives that I make in my sleep." He said there were no excuses: "I should have made them."
